Shanghai LGBT (meaning those who love their own sex, all sexes, or define as transgender) Community Center, founded 21st September 2013, is a platform to offer LGBT-related individuals and groups a space for activities. Its goal is to establish connections, investigate common issues, record the history of events, popularize academic concepts of gender, and actively influence society to attain inclusion and harmony.

Since its foundation, Shanghai Community Center already hosted three conferences for activists, who participated in topics including the establishment of communal goals, senses and shapes, common issues, characteristics, and current difficulties in organization, as well as the make-up and scale of our audience. They got introduced to each other's groups' set-up, history, past and future plans. By means of communication and exchange, activities of Shanghai groups could be harmonized, and volunteers found mentors and friends. In the next years, we hope to further collaborate and unite different groups to enhance our resonance within society, better our recognition, raise workplace policies, assist in coming out of the closet and further assist new groups in their activities.
